Q: 1002 error in access when trying to create 2 textboxes I am trying to set up a query using 2 textboxes. I used this code which worked for the first textbox Private Sub txtNROLoc_BeforeUpdate(Cancel As Integer) If IsNull(Me.txtReport) Then MsgBox "Please fill in a valid location" Cancel = True Exit Sub End If End Sub and when i try to do the same thing but for the second textbox i get an error of 1002. I have tried googling it but so far no one has been able to help me. A: You are binding control change event on textbox1 and checking the value of textbox2 with textbox1 in its controlupdate. There are the variations on control _BeforeUpdate event procedures, the difference being that event Handles clause differs For a parent form, the control_BeforeUpdate event procedure is specified in the From Code property. For any control, the control_BeforeUpdate event procedure is specified in the control_AfterUpdate event procedure. Event Object See the following image for more details on event procedures. When selecting the control Change event, selection from the Data Panel is necessary. Control_BeforeUpdate(parent control) [(Control_BeforeUpdate (Control))] The control_BeforeUpdate event procedure is invoked prior to the application retrieving or setting an item from the control. In a form's control_BeforeUpdate event procedure, the procedure executes following the retrieval or update: Raises a ControlChange event on its Control object. This event bubbles through the control's Parent container window, and terminates in the control_AfterUpdate event procedure of the form. This event procedure removes the event handler, if any, from the control's ControlChange event.

Control_AfterUpdate(Control) [(Control_AfterUpdate (Control))] The control_AfterUpdate event procedure is invoked after the application retrieves or sets an item from the control. In a form's control_AfterUpdate event procedure, the procedure executes following the retrieval or update. Sets the modifiers for the control.

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an illuminating device, particularly to an illuminating device for a reading device of the type in which an image of a document placed on a platen is focused by a camera located above the platen and is converted into an electric signal, and in which a fluorescent lamp is provided as a light source for illuminating the document placed on the platen. 2. Description of the Prior Art In a prior art reading device of the type described above, the light source which illuminates a document placed on a platen or a document reader is constituted by a fluorescent lamp and the fluorescence emitted by the fluorescent lamp is led to the platen with the aid of a reflector.

The fluorescence emanating from the fluorescent lamp is partly directed to the platen and partly directed towards an optical system of the camera. In the optical system of the camera, the light of the document is passed through an aperture in the platen and is photoelectrically detected by a charge-coupled device (CCD), and the image is formed into an electric signal. In the prior art, the fluorescent lamp is generally located in a housing opposite to the platen so that the fluorescence radiated from the fluorescent lamp may not dazzle the platen. This poses a problem with regard to the visual field of the reader. Another problem is that the image detecting device requires a light shield against the light of the fluorescent lamp so that the number of parts is large and the device is bulky. Furthermore, since the fluorescent lamp is constantly on, the device generates a large amount of heat. In a prior art sheet-feed-type document reader, the document placed on the platen is illuminated by a reading illumination light having a uniform illuminance distribution by a reflector. The document is read by an optical system which includes a light diffusing device and a light receiving device such as an image sensor or CCD. The light diffusing device in this case is arranged for the purpose of forming an image with a uniform illuminance distribution over the document even when the document is bright or when the document is dark. In this case, the document reader is also required to have a housing for housing the light diffusing device. # *- coding: utf-8 *- # #
