I need to display a list of recent files. How would I do this? A: If you want a "list of recent files", you could have a view of a specific content type (recent files) or use the Recent module that lets you query by date. If you want some custom fields, you could use Views to list out your recent files, then apply some logic to come up with another field that gives you the additional information you need (Recent module also give you an additional way to create a custom field). Finally, if you want a sidebar list, you could write your own custom code (the Page module will do a lot of the grunt work for you, but you can write your own sidebar using the Views module) Senators are not fans of Rep. Jason Chaffetz The Utah Republican has come under fire from both sides of the aisle for attending the G-20 event, which some say shows a lack of judgement. And some senators, who are probably the ones missing him most, are still asking questions about his behavior and what's been going on behind the scenes regarding his recent resignation as head of the U.S. House oversight committee. There's been a lot of speculation about what's been going on with Chaffetz, especially given that he announced his resignation a little over a month ago, claiming he no longer has the time for the job. Your feedback will be considered in the development of US Army recruiting strategies. Armies are recruiting personnel for several of their branches of service, including the National Guard, to fill positions within their component branches. This is the first time that the National Guard Bureau (NGB) has conducted a voluntary recruitment campaign separate from the Army's Active Component, and the first time it has conducted any overseas postings. Based on the Army's current recruiting plans and feedback from service members and their families, the NGB has established a three-pronged outreach strategy. Tier I The first tier of outreach is targeted at service members and their families, as well as their commanders, and aims to recruit new Army soldiers for the Regular Army. This is the same outreach strategy being used by the Active Component, including COBRA, AIRCENT, Force Management Agencies, and USAREUR. It includes newspaper ads, internet ads, recruiting rallies, and other media. A major focus of this tier is to recruit younger soldiers, including women and those with disabilities, as well as to reach out to junior officers, sergeants and noncommissioned officers (NCOs). As part of this approach, NGB will also make greater use of the military press and media networks, such as the Army's own worldwide broadcasts, and the Department of Defense's "Army for America” network. Tier II The second tier is targeted towards recruiting older soldiers with families and at risk of becoming separated from their children, as well as NCOs and officers with dependents. This approach includes in-person and telephonic invitations to help support military families, in particular those with children. It also includes in-person “hugs” – personalized messages of welcome designed to encourage current and former service members to join the Army. It will be used for all elements of the Army, including the Active

He said he started the business in 1997. He said he named the store after his father, who was a mechanic. He said he has always been interested in cars, with his father being a mechanic for General Motors. Brosseau added that he has worked on and raced vehicles. He and his father share a passion for cars that started at an early age. Brosseau said his father taught him how to work on vehicles by necessity and the desire to learn. “I’ve always been interested in working on cars. I have always liked working on cars. For me, it’s more about the history of that vehicle,” he said. “It’s really great because we’re in the business of restoring cars and taking them out on the road and making them run.” Brosseau said he has restored “every model from every brand of car. I love the challenge of it. I love to challenge myself,” he added. Brosseau said about 25 percent of his business is to service the cars, and an additional 25 percent to repair and track cars. He said his business is a drop-off location for many customers and that he has a car lot off of Roswell Road in Suwanee. He said if customers want a complete restoration they would need to contact him about buying the car. He would do the work on the car and then sell it to them. “I don’t own my house, I just rent it. That’s how I like it. I don’t like to own anything because I know I would keep stressing about paying rent,” he said. Brosseau added that if a customer wants a car only to drive it for pleasure or show, he can make that happen as well. “I can make a car that can go to the
