Investigating lipid peroxidation in situ in the brain and heart using magnetic resonance spectroscopy. In situ and ex situ magnetic resonance spectroscopy (MRS) have been used to monitor lipid peroxidation in the brain and heart of rats. In the brain, sodium dodecylsulfate polyacrylamide gel electrophoresis (SDS-PAGE) results showed that the abundance of a 42 kDa low-molecular-weight, lipid-protein adduct was significantly lower in rats that received supplemental selenium (Se), followed by FeCl3 injection, when compared to control animals. In the heart, the abundance of the 42 kDa lipid-protein adduct was greater in rats that received supplemental Se, but no significant differences were seen in the other spectroscopic indicators. Changes in the 42 kDa lipid-protein adduct in the brain may be a useful marker for cellular damage, as it was demonstrated to be sensitive to the damage induced by FeCl3 injection.

’s in the village! Let’s stock up on supplies and spend a bit of time with our goats. When you want a casual, hassle-free stay on a farm with 10 acres of grounds and plenty of privacy, The Stable At Burrell is a good choice. We have a beautiful old barn you can stay in for less than $100 a night. If you want some more privacy, you might want to check out Miller Barn... We’ll have their website up in the next few days. Don’t worry, you get to stay in an old log cabin in a barn too. Seasons Seasons are going to be a big part of our summer experience. We’re going to have people over for the warmer months, starting with music festivals. The GaitherMusic Festival is right in the center of Washington D.C. right now. We’re very excited to have a look at this music festival, and about being in the center of the action. Then we’re looking at a couple of other festivals starting in mid-August. First, we’ll be at the World of Beer Festival in Ellicott city. This is like a punk rock music festival! Then we’ll be at Art vs. Science. Then for a really fun event, the majority of the community was in different areas to save Jerusalem. After that we’

Q: Renaming commands for HTTPS public access I'm looking for a way to allow my sites to be indexed by Google and Yahoo without having to use the same domain for the public and private portions. I already have my own DNS setup to redirect requests to my private IP address for www.mydomain.com. Now I want it to redirect requests for .com to my www.mydomain.com, and do so for both HTTP and HTTPS. Is this possible to do on either side of the redirect using Apache? A: If your Apache is configured to serve HTTP and HTTPS simultaneously it should be fairly straightforward. Here's a config that I used (only a snippet): RewriteCond %{HTTP:X-Forwarded-Proto} ^https RewriteCond %{REQUEST_URI} ^/myfolder RewriteRule (.*) [R=301,L] The first condition has a trailing ^ to ensure that it applies to ALL HTTP requests, not just ones that use HTTPS protocol. The second condition ensures that the resource, /myfolder, is served by HTTPS only, and not HTTP. The third condition is where Apache does the actual forwarding. The fourth condition is to force a 301 (permanent) redirect instead of a 302 (temporary) redirect. As you know, the “EnronOnline” name and logo have been discontinued.
