The spyware scan can take quite a long time for extensive testing, and if it finds spyware, it usually installs it for you without asking you if it's okay. Commercial spyware applications tend to offer a very robust experience that provides more scanning options and includes more features for protecting your PC. However, they can be quite expensive, so they're not usually the first choice of spyware protection for average users. They're good options for the tech savvy home user who wants a deep and complete scan.
