Monero Monero is the first decentralized peer to peer digital currency. It also has the properties of a public ledger, being public and open source. This means anyone can view the transactions, and verify the history of the currency, but no one can alter them. Unlike bitcoin, there is no mining and no central authority. The Monero Cryptography Whitepaper is free online and covers both the technical and economic properties of the currency. You can view the source code here. You may also want to download it for offline reading. Select Network/Track on the online site and scroll down to find downloads for Mac, Windows and Linux. Downloads for Antivirus, RootChess and many other apps are also available. The Monero client for desktop is available for Windows, Mac OSX, and Linux. It also has a mobile app for Android and iOS.. Wallet for Windows, Mac, iOS, Android, ChromeOS,. Download Desktop Wallet for Windows, Mac, Linux and use it to send and receive Monero.. Download your favorite Monero Apps on iPhone and Android. Monero (XMR) is an Open Source, Cryptographic Currency, No need for Registration to use this coin. Monero is open source and fully decentralized, meaning there is no private company or government running it. Instead, Monero is run by volunteers, who make up a large community of users. This community includes miners who create new coins and maintain the network. Transactions in the network also happen through a community-run website, that records history and facilitates sending and receiving. An Introduction to Monero Monero is an open source, peer to peer digital currency, a much more private, safe and fast currency than bitcoin and other centralized cryptocurrencies. Monero is the first cryptocurrency designed with privacy, security and decentralization in mind. How it works Monero performs two primary functions that allow it to be a decentralized, secure, privately owned currency: a private, secure blockchain and the Ring Signatures technology. The most advanced anti-tampering technology available in the cryptocurrency market. Ring Signatures and Stealth Addresses Monero implements a private, distributed blockchain. Unlike public blockchains, like Bitcoin, it does not use a block-by-block timestamping of transactions. Instead, it requires that all transactions be validated by a group of randomly chosen participants called "nodes". These nodes (called "miners") consist of a 6d1f23a050
